

Hi

Do you know Murphy's Law?

The one that states . . .

'Whatever can go wrong will go wrong, and at the worst possible time.'

Well, MrMurphy came a-knocking and decided to break up our little money-making party before it had even got started!

Let me unload my woes on you. You see, just before I went off for a relaxing if rather damp holiday in Cornwall, I put together the Summer Fast Cash Compendium - a kind of mega bundle of the best money making ideas fro the archives. Well, I thought I'd go that extra mile and put together a brand new business blueprint.

(Now if you are not one of my regular subscribers then what you are about to read will mean nothing BUT please stick with me, as you'll actually benefit in big way from this.)

Back to the sorry story: well, the special business blueprint I put together was to show you how to set up a Bank Charge Reclamation business. In a nutshell, the banks had been overcharging s poor customers for years and it was possible to set up a business helping others to reclaim unfair charges and take a slice of whatever you recovered. It was a great little business and was already making some people a very tidy income. The banks were in a corner and it seemed like media exposure was about to generate a massive surge of hungry claimants in need of your help. So what happens less than a week after it is published? The good old Office of Fair Trading gets the go ahead to take 8 banks to the high court for the long awaited test case on whether or not banks charges are legal. Justice David Steel rules the test case will take place early next year. In the meantime the Financial Services Authority has said all the banks can put any claims for refunds on hold until a ruling is made in the test case.

So where does this leave you as regards the opportunity to make commission by reclaiming bank charges for others?

Well, in the short-term as no claims can be processed or submitted, the opportunity is beached. The test case could take months (some say years) before a definitive ruling is made. After all, the result could change the banking system in the UK as we know it.

This was completely out of the blue and really couldn't have been predicted. So hold fire for now. As soon as I know anything, I'll let you know.

Ok, now on with the good news . . .

As we are now missing a business blueprint from the Summer Fast Cash Compendium I'm going to replace it and I need your help.

I have 2 fantastic money making ideas that I know you are going to love and I need you to give me an idea which one you would like to see featured.

In the August issue of WRMM I include 2 very hot new business ideas: the first reveals exactly how you can scalp those price comparison websites like Kelkoo and Pricerunner and make anywhere from £40 - £150 per hour simply by buying popular products from the cheapest source and flipping them on another online outlet like eBay or Amazon. You can do this with everything from DVDs and CDs to Fridges and LCD TVs!

The other home business idea is so exciting I've been raving about it to all my friends and family - it's how to set up your own Ancestry Service publishing family trees. After a lot of investigation and interviewing industry contacts I was amazed that you could make an easy £25-30K per year from a scratch with just a PC and no specialist knowledge. And this is absolutely perfect for retirees, stay at home mums or anyone who wants a change of life and extra cash!

Of course, if you are a subscriber you'll get your hands on them first next Saturday.

But if you only read this e-letter, then let me ask you this

Which one of those 2 blueprints would you like to see in Fast Cash Compendium? PRICE COMPARISON or ANCESTRY? Let me know in the next couple of days by putting either one in the subject line of an email and I'll make sure the one with the most votes is included. I will then send you the compendium with the winner!

I will be back in touch very soon as I have some many new ideas and exciting news to share with you . . .

Cheers

Nick
